

Brandon Tyrone Harris-Crouch

October 22, 1985 - January 15, 2017

On Sunday, January 15, 2017 Brandon Tyrone Harris – Crouch (b- money) unexpectedly departed this life after several days of visiting and bidding family and friends a final farewell GOOD BYE. Brandon was born on October 22, 1985 in Mt Holly, New Jersey to Sheldon Harris and Barbara Rowe. Brandon was adopted at a young age, and he felt the upmost gratitude to his birth family for placing him with his adoptive parents and family who loved him “unconditionally.”

Brandon received most of his primary years of education at the Crouch Christian Academy in Willingboro, New Jersey and the Kings Christian School in Cherry Hill, New Jersey. Like many other children and teenagers around his age, Brandon became interested in sports and music. He relentlessly debated that he would never make it to the pros or in the music industry if he didn't transfer to a public school system. Well that was one of the few debates that he happened to win. June of 2004, Brandon graduated from Burlington County Institute of Technology in Westampton, New Jersey receiving both a high school diploma and a certificate in Culinary Arts. Several weeks after graduation Brandon began basic training as a US Army Reservist in Fort Jackson, South Carolina. In which successfully completed basic training and classes in diesel mechanics. For Brandon, this was not just a great accomplishment, but a goal that made him very PROUD.

Brandon as a youngster was always thinking way beyond his years. For some unearthly reason he never wanted to stay a child's lane. His wittiness coupled with his arrogant behavior let him tell it, landed him many grueling and boring conversations with mom. He would say things “like ok, ok mom stop talking I'll take the whipping. Yet there was a side of Brandon that would either charm or convince you to act in his favor. He was kindhearted but at the same time if you caught him wrong he was full of fight. Stubborn but if you had skills he would cooperate. Serious thinker and debater yet had the funniest laugh and raw sense of humor. Brandon the thinker, Brandon the dreamer, Brandon the child who at the age of 4 years old spent time jumping off things attempting to fly. Or the little eight year old wanting to hang out at the basketball courts and play ball with the older kids get, a job as a paper boy to make his own money. speaks of the dreamer inside of him.

Brandon's wisdom as a child coupled with his experiences as a teenager and curiosity as an adult in the last several years of his life seemingly formulated greater challenges for Brandon than he himself could imagine. Yet one of his last spoken of desires was to better his life style. Brandon was currently employed at Popeye's in Willingboro, New Jersey as a cook.

He leaves to cherish in his memories his parents, Archie and Carolyn Crouch of Willingboro, New Jersey, two daughters Amani Zion Harris, Grovehill, Alabama, La-daisha Harris, Willingboro, New Jersey, two brothers Jonathan Adams-Crouch, Willingboro, New Jersey Shawn Harris, Browns Mills New Jersey, six sisters, Cheryl Townsend, Pasadena, Maryland, Heidi Herndon (Fred) Woolwich, New Jersey, Eunice Harris, Mt Holly , New Jersey, Quayonna Rowe-Crouch, Christina Roberts, Khadijah, Mecca and Egypt Cope all residents of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and a host of relatives and friends.
